Oral Surgery

Here at pure dental we have the services of a specialist oral surgeon. He accepts referrals from general dentists for complex extractions, apilentomies, wisdom teeth removal. We also offer a sedation facility to cater for nervous patients.

Nervous patients come in all guises. Some cannot even walk through the door into a dental office, others shrug it off and pretend they're okay whilst their heart rate goes up, their skin turns cold and their muscles tense.

We like treating nervous patients because getting the nervous individual through their dental treatment is immensely satisfying. It makes us feel good!

Intravenous sedation allows you to be sedated just enough to be pain free and unaware of the treatment, as if you were relaxing. That is why it is normally referred to as a conscious sedation process. So if you have sensitive teeth, a fear of dentists, have a bad gag reflex, hate needles, or have limited time to spend on dental care at the dentist, sedation during dentistry procedures can help you.

Whatever the case may be sedation by your dentists can help you be more anxiety free during your dentistry treatment. Your dentist's ultimate goal is to make your visit to the dentist a relaxing and enjoyable one. Since you are completely comfortable, relaxed, and pain free your dentist can do years of dental treatments in one or two dental visits.

With sedation your dentist can restore sore gums to good dental health, fix a chipped tooth, replace crowns or dentures, whiten yellow or stained teeth, and more. All pain free. Intravenous sedation is a reliable and effective means of producing sedation. IV sedation is good for patients who do not wish to remember anything which has happened, and for this reason can be a benefit for long or difficult procedures like complex oral surgery.
